

A Railway to Damascus

By Hillel Mitelpunkt

Play: 637

Opening: 26/03/2010

Director: Ilan Ronen

Set and Costume Design: Ruth Dar

Music: Ori Vidislavski

Lighting Design: Micha Margalit

Video Editor: Arik Avigdor

Speech (Hebrew): Asi Eshed

Speech (English): Herzl Tobey

CAST

Sarah: Yevgenia Dodina

Shlomi, Sarah's brother: Tomer Ben David

Nina: Hilla Feldman

Fathi: Gasam Abbas

Jalal, Fathi's son: Yousef (Joe) Sweid

John, a British Officer: Ishai Golan

Arch, a British Officer: Roi Miller

Kaplan: Eli Danker

Dalia: Daria Alufi/Adi Bar Lev

Two Lehi Officers: Roi Miller, Shahar Raz

A Waiter: Shahar Raz

Against the backdrop of Mandatory Palestine, lies a complex tale of betrayal, forbidden love, and the battle of the Jewish Underground.

Haifa, 1942: The German Army approaches Israel, the tension between Jews and Arabs increases, the British Army prepares for retreat... In the midst of those anxious days, Sarah, the play's hero, continues to follow a dream of a better world, whilst fighting for the survival of herself and of her loved ones.

'Road to Damascus' is a thrilling play dealing with the desperate longing for love and understanding, at the peak of one of Israel's most uneasy times.