

The Age Of The Innocent

By S. Lenz

Play no. 185

Opening show: 02/0/1962

Hebrew by: I. A. Rozen

Directed by : I. Moskovitz

Decor: G. Richter

Lighting by : G. Gavrieli

Cast

Hotel Manager: A. Kutai

Printer: H. Amitai

Banker: S. Rudenski

Peasant: S. Segal

Engineer: I. Efroni

Driver: E. Yuna

Student: S. Bar-Shavit

Baron: I. Beker

Doctor: A. Hiskiahu

Young Man: A. Almog

Guard: I. Feigenblum

Major: Z. Stolper

Captain: N. Shimony

Sentry: I. Eliraz

A Governor took 9 people from all walks of life and imprisoned them. The reason – their complete innocence. In addition to these people, he added another – a young revolutionary who was not prepared under any circumstances to reveal the names of his other accomplices, neither was he ready to change his convictions nor prepared to work for the Governor. He made his confessions without any regrets and stated that given the opportunity, he would again try to assassinate the Governor. The Governor asked for the cooperation of the innocent and stated that they were at liberty to do as they wished with the assassin and whatever the on come, they would be absolved from blame.

A quotation from this play will replace a detailed synopsis and give an idea of the mood and spirit.

Student: We have all committed a spiritual crime but only one of us executed it. Strange as that may sound, certain crimes are influenced by circumstances, but we provided the circumstances and therefore we are guilty.