

Going on a trip

A tale of girlhood and freedom from Nava Semel's book of short stories Hat of Glass

Written and directed by: Lahav Timor

Play no. 752

Opening show: 25/12/2021

Set Design: Rotem Nadya Barkai

Costume Design: Shir Eden

Music: Jonathan Magon

Choreography: Keren Zohar

Lighting: Nimrod Danishman

Cast

Young Noya: Amit Farkash

Adult Noya: Miki Peleg Rothstein

Father: Oded Leopold

Mother / Yael: Ronit Apel

Grandfather / Ohad: Daniel Sabag

Grandmother / Naama: Rinat Matatov

Nurse / Lior: Hagar Tishman / Mai Meler

Micah: Ami Smolarchik

Yoav: Nadir Eldad

Noya came out of the classroom and saw the same three girls from a distance. She thought they would laugh at her and her father again, calling him a madman. But instead they asked: "Would you like to be in our tent on the school trip? Shall we spend the trip together?"

Now a middle-aged woman, Noya revisits that trip. It was a trip that stirred things deep inside her: excitement and dreams, nightmares and desires, and, perhaps for the first time, the strength to stand up to her father - her father and his shadow. With delicate movements, a captivating set, and music that blurs time, the play wanders in and out of timelines and stories that share one thing at their heart: a longing to open the door and go outside.