Nina is an incorrigible romantic whose two addictions are cleaning and romantic comedies. She has just one problem - she hasn't left the house in three years. One day, the worst happens - her landlady's broke but handsome son unexpectedly returns from abroad and demands that Nina leave. In order not to leave, Nina finds herself living with a stranger who is making her house - and more importantly, her life - messy. But as the two become closer, Nina must decide: Now that she has opened her door, does she dare open her heart as well?
